Fallert describes Woodsy Owl as a fantasy character, wise in the ways of the outdoor world, possessing great wisdom and knowledge on the subject of natural environment.

Fallert also noted that, due to the volume of bags necessary to cover county visitor centers, 4-H-related events and activities and public service projects

QUESTIONS ANSWERED ON TAX OVERRIDE

PORTERVILLE – "Refurbishing of existing classrooms not just to make them pretty but to make them more functional," was given at Tuesday's Porterville Rotary club meeting as a basic reason for a "yes" vote, on September 19, for a five-year, 45-cent tax override in the Porterville Elementary School district.

VERTICILLIUM WILT HITS COTTON FOLLOWING RECENT COOL WEATHER

By Alan G. George
Farm Advisor

VISALIA – The soil fungus, Verticillium wilt, has severely hit many cotton fields in Tulare county following the recent cool weather.

The sudden defoliation of individual plants, areas of fields, and even whole fields caused by this disease can have considerable affect on yield potential in what appeared to be a promising crop.

Wilt was found in many cotton fields in late May and early June as has been the case in previous years. However, the degree of infection did not increase appreciably during June, July, and early August because of the high temperatures and favorable growing conditions. This soil organism is almost inactive at soil temperatures of about 80° F or more.

When temperatures favor the crop, development of the buildup of wilt is generally at a minimum. However, during the past few weeks the combination of below normal temperatures and the application of irrigation water has favored the development of this disease organism. Cool nighttime temperatures appear to be the biggest factor in a rapid buildup of the disease.

Some fields of the Acala SJ-1 cotton in Tulare county have appeared to have collapsed in a matter of a few days. This is not uncommon with the defoliating strain of the Verticillium organism we have in combination with the boll load present at this time of year and the need of additional tolerance in the present variety when such a temperature drop occurs.

Although the production effect of the disease won't be known until harvest, the present wilt buildup will put severe disease pressure on some of the cotton variety evaluations underway in Tulare County by University of California, United States Department of Agriculture researchers, and growers participating in a special variety evaluation program.

In addition, it will give more data on the benefits of narrow-row cotton in comparative tests being conducted by University of California personnel and Tulare county growers.

Although the outlook for the 1972 cotton crop in Tulare county is better than the average yield of 596 pounds of lint per acre in 1971, disease continues to hurt cotton production

UNUSUAL AIRCRAFT - experimental homebuilt, military and antique, about 100 of them - were on display at the Porterville Municipal airport during the Western Fly-in of the Experimental Aircraft association, Saturday and Sunday. About 300 pilots flew in for the event; from 4,000 to 5,000 persons attended. Taking a look at some of the exhibits was The Farm Tribune camera.

ENDANGERED SNAKE IS BRED IN CAPTIVITY

SACRAMENTO – The world's only known endangered snake has been successfully bred in captivity in a project sponsored by the California Department of Fish and Game.

Twenty-eight young were born to a female San Francisco garter snake at the DFG field station in Sacramento August 28.

Five of the young were stillborn and another subsequently died. The others were reported doing well.

Plans are to release about half of the young late this month onto the snake's range along the San Francisco peninsula. At this time the young will have reached about seven inches in length.

The balance of the group will be released sometime later when they reach lengths of approximately 14 inches.

The San Francisco garter snake is a fully protected species and cannot be taken or possessed without express written permission from the department.

The struggle for power.

We could run short of electricity. Conservation is vital.

Remember that record-breaking heat wave last year?

You weren't the only one sweating it out.

So were we. The demand for electricity hit an all-time peak on September 13, 1971. It was 13% higher than the 1970 peak.

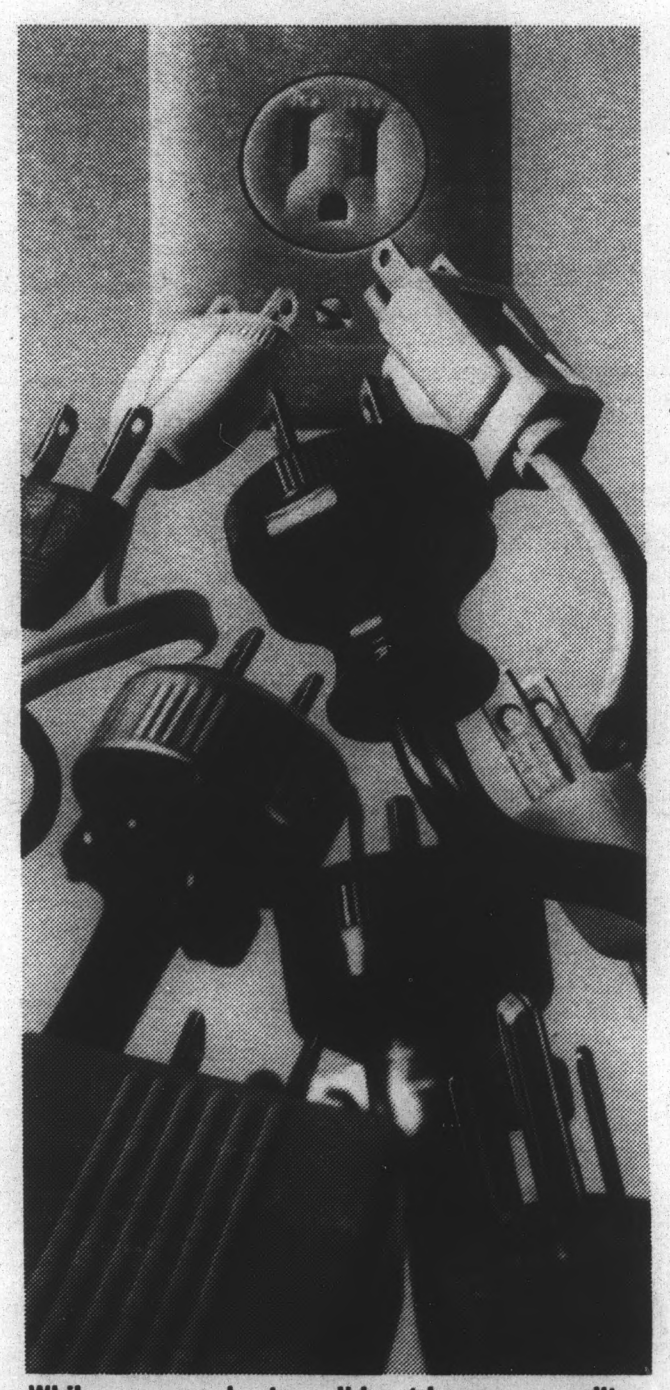

We met all demands, but our system was severely strained.

But what about the years ahead? Each year the demand for electricity keeps right on growing. New homes keep going up. And schools. Office buildings. Factories.

All will require additional electricity. So will the new equipment needed to clean up the environment.

Unless Edison is permitted to build additional power plants and transmission lines, it may become necessary to blackout blocks of customers on a rotational basis within two or three years.

Yet permits necessary to build any new major plants have been delayed or blocked for the past four years.

While a power shortage did not become a reality in 1971, the threat of one did. Edison is working with industrial and business firms to conserve electricity in offices and factories.

That's an immediate problem. We're working hard to resolve it.

The long-range problem requires finding more ways to conserve energy and to use our nation's total energy resources wisely.
That involves all of us.

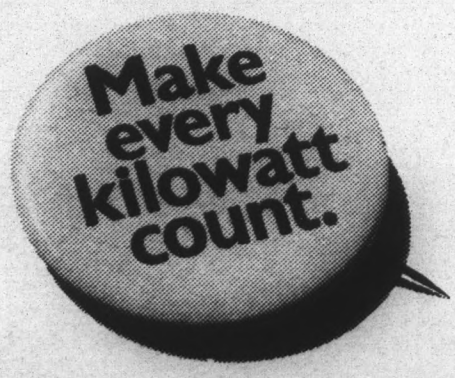

In Edison's fossil-fueled plants, for example, we're now able to produce 30% more electricity from a unit of fuel than in 1948.
That helps.

And by using higher-voltage transmission lines, we're also able to deliver electricity more efficiently.

Perhaps you can conserve energy, too. Have you considered ways to make every kilowatt count at home? We'll be happy to send you a list of practical suggestions.

Surplus Diversion Plan Established For Producers Of Eggs In California

SACRAMENTO – The first industry-wide surplus pool plan for eggs, aimed at improving the economic situation of California egg producers, has been approved by the California department of agriculture.

The surplus pool plan will allow producers to divert into other market channels 10 percent of the eggs produced for market in California. It is part of the California Egg program, a State marketing order made effective on July 12, 1972.

The Egg Advisory Board recommended the surplus plan to Director of Agriculture C.B. Christensen, who explained that overproduction of eggs has been the major factor contributing to the low prices of eggs to producers.

"The average price has been below the cost of production for most California egg producers," Christensen said. "By diverting the surplus production into noncompetitive markets, the industry will be making effective progress to help eliminate the disastrous economic conditions which have been plaguing California egg producers for many years."

Under the surplus pool plan, egg producers may either divert 10 percent of any eggs marketed in excess of 200 cases per week into the surplus pool, or they may reduce the size of their flocks.

The surplus program became effective September 3, and will continue for one year. The Egg Advisory board and the department will continually monitor the market situation for eggs under the plan, and will make changes as conditions dictate.

Christensen noted that California's estimated egg production is over 400,000 cases weekly. More than 500 producers will be affected by the new surplus control plan.

Guidelines For Animal Waste Disposal Developed By California State Agencies

SACRAMENTO – Growing concern for the environmental problems of animal waste disposal and the protection of surface and ground water from these wastes has prompted the California Central Valley Regional Water Quality Control board and the California department of agriculture to mutually implement "Guidelines for Management of Animal Waste in and from Areas of Animal Confinement."

State Agriculture Director C. Brunel Christensen and James A. Robertson, executive officer of the Water Quality Control board explained that the guidelines, developed by the Agricultural Water Quality Advisory committee and submitted to the State Water Resources Control board for approval, are designed to inform government agencies, the livestock industry, and the general public of the steps that need to be taken.

The State Agriculture department worked with the advisory committee in developing the guidelines, Christensen and Robertson noted, and will provide assistance to the livestock industry in achieving compliance.

Basically, the guidelines stress that washwater and storm runoff from manure storage areas must be contained on the property or discharged in such a manner that the wastes do not get into streams or lakes. The guidelines will not restrict the use of wastes as fertilizers since the best means of disposing of most animal wastes is on crop lands.

Persons who want to contribute to this cause may send checks payable to Porterville College Book fund and mail to: Financial Aids office, Porterville College Book Loan fund, Porterville College, 900 South Main Street, Porterville, California 93257.

NEW DESIGNATION FOR FOREIGN MATERIAL IN GRAPES

SACRAMENTO – Under a new regulation effective August 23, foreign material appearing in each load of wine grapes may be recorded in pounds per ton rather than in percentages, according to State Agriculture Director C.B. Christensen.

"Foreign material" is defined as leaves, vines, and other such material found in the grape samples during inspection. The regulation will be adopted to create uniformity in inspection of grapes used for wine.

The new system was developed after a year's research in cooperation with the Wine Advisory Board, Wine Institute, and the State Department of Agriculture.

SUCCESS VALLEY ENROLLMENT NIGHT SEPT. 11

SUCCESS VALLEY – The Success Valley 4-H club board of directors, meeting recently at the Arthur Wardlaw home, planned activities, and outlined the 1972-73 club calendar.

A discussion was held on projects to be offered: Some of these include beef, lamb, horse, cooking, and home furnishing. Anyone interested in being a leader is asked to attend the first club meeting, enrollment night, at 7:30 p.m., Monday, September 11, in the Success valley community building.

Present at the planning meeting were: Mrs. Ernie Crew, and Lezlie Crew; Mrs. Lee Gill, and Tracy Gill; Mrs. Gerald Mason; Tonya, and Rhett Mason; Mrs. Arthur Wardlaw, and Vicky Wardlaw.

BENNETT WINS BEST BEEF EXHIBIT AWARD

VANDALIA – Richard Bennett, Vandalia 4-H club, was presented the Bank of America award for having the best beef exhibit at the 4-H division of the California State fair last week.

In breeding classes Bennett's Herefords placed as follows: Junior calf bull, first and third; junior yearling bull, second; junior calf female, second; senior calf female, first; senior yearling female, second; junior and senior yearling female, first; and champion female of the show.

Bennett also won round robin showmanship and beef showmanship, as well as showing the reserve grand champion market beef.

Visalia Players Start Campaign For Playhouse

VISALIA – A fundraising campaign for a Visalia Players Community playhouse will be climaxed with a two-night production of Clare Boothe Luce's "The Women," the play which led to the founding of the Visalia Players 16 years ago.

"The Women" will run October 13 and 14 at the L.J. Williams theater. Brent Ensign, director of the original production, will return to the theater to direct the fundraiser, assisted by Elizabeth Dobson of Exeter, who also was involved in the first production of "The Women" in Visalia and has been active in county community theater for many years.

The Visalia Players, who are now housed in an upstairs loft at 117 N. Court St., have talked of building a modern, ideally-sized community theater for several years. With the recent sale of their home, however, talk became action and a Visalia Players building fund established.

A no-host reception in the Elizabeth Dobson Reception room will follow the play both nights.

Sponsor tickets are available at $10, and entitle the theater-goers to choice seats and their name in the program.

Seats at $5 and $3 also are available. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Reservations may be made by mailing checks to the Visalia Players, P.O. Box 1362. Deadline for sponsor tickets is September 20.

Spending for foods in America's supermarkets and grocery stores reached $3.15 billion during 1971.

Keep County Beautiful

through the year, it was necessary to seek financial assistance from local County 4-H clubs and from Tulare county businesses, organizations, and industries that are interested in ecology. The project is geared for a five-year distribution with annual review and evaluation.

Assisting Fallert, of the Pleasant View 4-H club, are Mark Swall, Oakdale club, Tulare; Chris Falcinella, Earlimart 4-H club, and Debbie Pullen, Oak Grove club, Visalia.

The litter bag, soon to be available, is printed in green and brown ink on a white 100% reclaimed paper, with the Owl and 4-H Club emblem on the front and the 4-H pledge on the reverse side.

Advisors for the project are Luella Scharff, of the Extension service, and Don Hansen, public information officer, Sequoia National Forest, Porterville.

Fallert estimated the annual cost of 50,000 bags will be approximately $1,100.00, covering the costs of design, plates, printing and shipping.

Shortage of beef is developing throughout the world with such traditionally export countries as Argentina, Mexico and Canada now unable to produce sufficient beef to meet their own domestic demand.

Some watermelons are still being harvested in the Bakersfield area.

upgrade physical facilities is to renovate existing buildings, thereby provide an additional 30-40 years of use; and modernization of facilities, including air-conditioning of classrooms, will "open the door" for exploration of a 12-month school program.

It was emphasized that the proposed modernization work "is in no way a frills program," but is designed as the most practical way to upgrade classroom facilities and instructional equipment to provide the best possible educational opportunity to elementary-age students.

It was pointed out that recommendation to ask for the override tax was made to school trustees by a 47-member Citizen's Master Plan Advisory committee, whose members, after a long-term study, agreed that school facilities should be upgraded.

Two problems formerly existed - financing of mandatory replacement by 1975 of school buildings that did not meet earthquake-resistance standards as set by the Field act, and upgrading of classroom facilities in "sound" buildings.

A bond issue to take care of both areas of need failed to carry by less than one percent last February. Subsequently, the State of California made loan funds available for replacement of sub-standard buildings - funds that have been approved for the Porterville Elementary district.

With this need taken care of, school trustees and advisory committee members then favored a 45-cent tax override to take care of what they consider to be necessary upgrading of classroom facilities on a pay-as-you-go basis.

If the override tax is passed, all nine schools in the Porterville Elementary district will receive benefits from a total project of something over one million dollars.

The tax will raise approximately $200,000 per year for the five-year period of the tax; improvements will be made as this money becomes available, with renovation work scheduled for minimum disruption of the school program.

IMPORTING OF EXOTIC BIRDS BANNED BY USDA

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has banned further commercial imports of all species of live pet and exotic birds, as part of a stepped-up drive to eradicate exotic Newcastle disease.

The action was taken by UDSA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection service to protect the nation's $5 billion poultry industry from further introduction of the disease into the U.S.

A commercial shipment of imported exotic birds into southern California late last year is considered by scientists to be the source of infection which has resulted in the destruction or death of some 3.9 million poultry and other birds.

USDA officials emphasized that consumers cannot catch exotic Newcastle disease by eating poultry or eggs. However, if the disease is not eradicated, a shortage of eggs, broilers, and turkeys could result, which would drastically increase their cost to the consumer - in addition to the severe losses that would be suffered by the nation's poultrymen, USDA officials state.

COTTON FIELD DAY AND TOUR SET FOR SEPTEMBER 12

HANFORD – The Annual Kings County Cotton Tour and Field day will be held Tuesday, September 12, with Kings County Farm Advisor O.D. All San Joaquin Valley cotton producers are invited to participate.
